Defined Events and Administration

safe angel syndicate separately defines an equity financing, liquidity event, dissolution event, conversion security, company capitalization, and the investor's purchase amount.

The treatment applicable at an event follows the signed SAFE's own cap, discount, family, and amendment provisions rather than a later spreadsheet recap.

Notices, assignment, governing law, counterpart execution, and amendment consent complete the operative instrument and remain effective with its economic terms.

1. What This Instrument Is, and What It Is Not

This instrument is an agreement to issue equity in the future. It is not a loan, it is not evidence of indebtedness, and the Investor is not a creditor of the Company in respect of the Purchase Amount. No interest accrues on the Purchase Amount, there is no maturity date, and there is no date on which the Company becomes obliged to return the money.

The Investor may therefore never receive anything. If the Company neither completes an Equity Financing nor undergoes a Liquidity Event nor is dissolved, this instrument remains outstanding indefinitely and the Investor's money remains at risk in the Company's business with no right of recall. The Investor has acknowledged that consequence in Section 11.

This instrument is on the form the Company used before the publication of the post-money form of the same document, and the calculations it requires are made on a pre-money basis. A reader familiar only with the post-money form should not assume that the definitions used here match those used there; the definitions that apply are those recorded in this instrument and in its particulars.

2. The Investor, and the Nominee Through Which the Syndicate Subscribed

The Investor is a syndicate of individual angel investors that subscribed through a nominee. The nominee holds this instrument, and any security issued on its conversion, as the record holder for the members of the syndicate in the proportions recorded in the syndicate's own arrangements, which are not part of this instrument and to which the Company is not a party.

The Company deals with the nominee alone. A notice given to the nominee is notice to the Investor, a consent given by the nominee binds the Investor, and a payment made to the nominee discharges the Company. The Company is not obliged to enquire into the authority of the nominee, into the internal arrangements of the syndicate, or into the identity of the persons for whom the nominee acts, except as Section 11 requires.

The nominee has confirmed to the Company that it holds a written authority from each member of the syndicate to subscribe on that member's behalf and to give and receive notices, and that each member was given the opportunity to review the Company's information before the syndicate subscribed. The register of members and the authorities are recorded in Schedule A.

3. Equity Financing: Conversion into Preferred Stock

If the Company completes an Equity Financing before this instrument terminates, the Purchase Amount converts automatically, immediately before the closing of that financing, into shares of a series of preferred stock. The Investor receives the number of shares the conversion particulars of this instrument produce, and pays nothing further for them.

Equity Financing means a bona fide transaction or series of transactions in which the Company issues and sells preferred stock at a fixed valuation for the principal purpose of raising capital. A conversion of convertible instruments, an issue to a commercial partner as part of a wider arrangement, and an issue under an employee plan are not Equity Financings.

The series into which this instrument converts has the rights of the series sold in the financing, except that its liquidation preference and its conversion price may be adjusted as the conversion particulars provide to reflect the price at which this instrument converts. The Investor shall sign the agreements the purchasers in the financing sign, other than any agreement to invest new money.

4. Liquidity Event: the Cash-Out Amount or Conversion into Common Stock

Liquidity Event means a change of control of the Company or an initial public offering of its common stock. If a Liquidity Event occurs before this instrument terminates, the Investor is entitled, at its election, either to be paid the Cash-Out Amount or to convert the Purchase Amount into shares of common stock immediately before the event.

The Cash-Out Amount and the basis on which a conversion into common stock is calculated are stated in the conversion particulars of this instrument. The Investor shall make its election by notice to the Company within the period the particulars allow, and shall be treated as having elected the Cash-Out Amount if it does not respond within that period.

The Investor's entitlement on a Liquidity Event is paid out of the consideration payable to the Company's stockholders and ranks with, and not ahead of, the entitlements of the holders of the Company's other instruments of this kind. If the consideration is insufficient to pay every such holder in full, the available consideration is shared among them in proportion to their respective entitlements.

Schedule B - What the Investor receives at each of the three defined events

Defined event	What the Investor receives	Where the basis is stated	Election available	Ranking
Equity Financing	Shares of the new preferred series	Conversion particulars	None; automatic	With other such instruments
Liquidity Event: change of control	Cash-Out Amount or common stock	Conversion particulars	Investor elects	With other such instruments
Liquidity Event: public offering	Common stock	Conversion particulars	None; automatic	With other such instruments

Defined event	What the Investor receives	Where the basis is stated	Election available	Ranking
Dissolution Event	The Purchase Amount, if funds allow	Section 5	None	Ahead of common stock
No event occurs	Nothing; the instrument continues	Section 1	None	Not applicable
Company dissolves without funds	Nothing	Section 5	None	Not applicable
Transfer by the nominee	No change in entitlement	Section 13	None	Unchanged
Termination after full performance	Nothing further	Section 6	None	Not applicable

Financing and liquidity-event definitions qualify this SAFE term.

5. Dissolution Event and the Standing of the Purchase Amount

Dissolution Event means a voluntary termination of the Company's operations, a general assignment for the benefit of its creditors, or any other liquidation or winding up of the Company other than a Liquidity Event. On a Dissolution Event the Company shall pay the Investor the Purchase Amount before it distributes any assets to the holders of its common stock.

That entitlement is subordinate to the claims of the Company's creditors and ranks equally with the entitlements of the holders of the Company's other instruments of this kind. If the Company's assets available for distribution are insufficient to pay all such holders their Purchase Amounts in full, the available assets are shared among them in proportion to those amounts and the balance is not payable.

The Investor is not a creditor in respect of the Purchase Amount and may not prove for it in the Company's insolvency as a debt. The Investor acknowledges that the priority this Section gives is a priority over the Company's stockholders only, and that it may recover nothing on a Dissolution Event.

6. Termination of This Instrument

This instrument terminates on the earliest of the issue of the shares to which the Investor becomes entitled on an Equity Financing, the payment or the setting aside for payment of the amount the Investor becomes entitled to on a Liquidity Event, and the payment or the setting aside for payment of the Purchase Amount on a Dissolution Event.

Termination discharges the Company from every obligation under this instrument other than an obligation to deliver a security it has become obliged to deliver and has not yet delivered. The Investor's representations in Section 11, and the restrictions on resale in Section 12, survive termination and continue to bind the Investor and its transferees.

7. The Valuation Cap and the Pre-Money Character of This Instrument

The Valuation Cap is the amount stated on the signature page. It fixes the highest company value at which the Purchase Amount converts, so that the Investor receives at least the proportion of the Company that the Purchase Amount would have bought at that value, calculated on the basis the conversion particulars state.

Because this is a pre-money instrument, the capitalisation against which the Cap is applied is measured immediately before the Equity Financing rather than immediately after it, and the shares issued on the conversion of this instrument are not counted in that measurement. The consequence is that the proportion the Investor finally holds is smaller than the proportion the arithmetic of the Cap suggests, and the Investor has acknowledged that consequence.

This instrument carries no discount to the price paid by the purchasers in the Equity Financing. The Cap is the only term that gives the Investor an advantage over those purchasers, and if the Company completes an Equity Financing at a pre-money value below the Cap the Investor converts at the price those purchasers pay.

8. The Capitalisation Used in the Conversion Calculation

The capitalisation against which the Valuation Cap is applied is determined as the capitalisation particulars of this instrument provide. Those particulars identify the classes of security counted, the treatment of options and other rights to acquire shares, and the treatment of shares reserved but not issued under the Company's equity incentive plan.

The Company shall prepare the calculation, shall have it certified by an officer, and shall deliver it to the nominee at least ten Business Days before the closing of the Equity Financing, together with the extract of the Company's capitalisation record on which it relies. The nominee may query the calculation within five Business Days and the Company shall correct an arithmetical error before the closing.

A calculation prepared by the Company for another purpose - a board paper, a management model, an export from the Company's equity administration platform - does not govern the conversion of this instrument, and a difference between such a document and the calculation delivered under this Section is resolved in favour of the calculation prepared under this Section and the particulars it applies.

Schedule C - Preparation and review of the conversion calculation

Step	Performed by	Evidence relied on	Timing	Investor's right
Extract the capitalisation record	Equity administrator	Platform export	Fifteen days before closing	None
Reconcile the extract to the stock ledger	Chief Financial Officer	Ledger pages	Fourteen days before closing	None

9. No Pro-Rata Right, and the Reason None Was Granted

This instrument grants the Investor no right to participate in the Equity Financing or in any later financing of the Company. No side letter granting such a right was delivered with it, and the Company has given the Investor no undertaking, oral or written, to offer it an allocation in a future round.

The point was raised when the instrument was negotiated. The Company declined to grant a pro-rata right to a syndicate holding through a nominee, on the ground that a right exercisable by a nominee for a shifting body of members would be difficult to administer and would complicate the allocation of a later round. The syndicate accepted that position in exchange for the Valuation Cap stated on the signature page.

If the Company chooses to offer the Investor an allocation in a later financing it may do so, but it is under no obligation to do so and its having done so once creates no obligation to do so again. This Section states the whole of the position and displaces any contrary expectation recorded in the syndicate's own materials.

10. Representations of the Company

The Company represents that it is duly incorporated and in good standing under the law of the State of Delaware, that it has the corporate power to enter into this instrument and to issue the securities it contemplates, and that this instrument has been duly authorised and executed and is enforceable against the Company according to its terms.

The Company represents that the execution of this instrument does not breach its certificate of incorporation, its bylaws, or any material agreement to which it is a party, and that no consent of a third party is required for it that has not been obtained. The Company makes no representation as to the value of its business or as to the likelihood of an Equity Financing.

The Company shall use the Purchase Amount for its business and for its working capital, and shall not apply it in the redemption of any security or in a distribution to any holder of its capital stock. The Company gives no other representation and the Investor confirms that it has relied on none.

11. Representations of the Investor and of the Syndicate Members

The nominee represents, for itself and for each member of the syndicate, that each member is an accredited investor (17 C.F.R. § 230.501), that each subscribed for investment and not with a view to distribution, and that each was given the opportunity to ask questions of the Company's officers and to receive the information the member considered necessary before subscribing.

The nominee further represents that no member was solicited by any advertisement, article, notice or other communication published in any newspaper, magazine or similar medium or broadcast over television or radio, and that no member was invited to subscribe at any seminar or meeting whose attendees had been invited by any general solicitation.

The Company issued this instrument in reliance on those representations and on the exemption available for a limited offering to accredited investors (17 C.F.R. § 230.506(b)). The nominee shall notify the Company if it becomes aware that a representation in this Section was inaccurate when given, and shall procure that each member notifies it of any change in the member's status.

12. Restricted Securities, Legends and Limits on Resale

This instrument, and any security issued on its conversion, are restricted securities. Neither may be offered or sold except in a transaction registered under the applicable securities law or exempt from registration, and the Investor acknowledges that the availability of an exemption for a resale depends on conditions that may not be satisfied for a considerable period. (17 C.F.R. § 230.144)

Every certificate or book-entry notation for a security issued on the conversion of this instrument bears the Company's restrictive legend and, where applicable, a legend recording the agreements to which the holder of the security has adhered. The Company may refuse to record a transfer made otherwise than in accordance with those legends and with Section 13.

The Investor shall not distribute this instrument, or a summary of its terms, to any person other than a member of the syndicate, that member's professional advisers, and the syndicate's own administrator, and shall procure that each recipient observes the same restriction.

13. Transfer of This Instrument

The nominee may not transfer this instrument except with the Company's prior written consent, which the Company may withhold in its discretion, save that the nominee may transfer it to a successor nominee for the same syndicate on notice to the Company and on the successor's written assumption of the nominee's obligations.

A change in the membership of the syndicate is not a transfer of this instrument, provided that the nominee remains the record holder and that the incoming member gives the nominee the same representations as Section 11 requires of the original members. The nominee shall notify the Company of a change in membership within twenty Business Days and shall update Schedule A.

The Company may assign this instrument in connection with a reincorporation to change its domicile, and not otherwise. An assignment or transfer made in breach of this Section is void and the Company shall not record it.

Financing and liquidity-event definitions qualify this SAFE term.

14. Notices, Amendment, Governing Law and Counterparts

A notice under this instrument is given in writing to the address in the notice particulars, is effective on delivery, and may be given by electronic mail with written confirmation of receipt. The nominee shall maintain a single address for notices and shall not require the Company to give notice to any member of the syndicate individually.

This instrument may be amended only in writing signed by the Company and the nominee. Neither party may amend it by conduct, by a course of dealing, or by the exchange of correspondence that does not state that it amends the instrument. A waiver is effective only in the instance for which it is given.

This instrument is governed by the law of the State of Delaware without regard to its conflict-of-laws rules, may be executed in counterparts, and is severable so that the unenforceability of one provision does not affect the others. The particulars attached to it form part of it.

15. The Company's Record-Keeping and What the Nominee Receives

The Company shall record this instrument in the register it keeps of instruments of this kind, showing the nominee as the holder, the date of subscription, the Purchase Amount as stated on the signature page, and the fact that the instrument is on the pre-money form. The register entry is an administrative record and does not vary any term of this instrument.

The Company shall deliver to the nominee, once in each of its fiscal years, a statement confirming that the instrument remains outstanding and identifying any event that has occurred which the Company considers may be an Equity Financing, a Liquidity Event or a Dissolution Event. The Company is not obliged to deliver financial statements, and the Investor has no information right beyond that annual statement.

If the Company issues a further instrument of this kind it shall so record in the register, but it is not obliged to notify the nominee, to deliver a copy of that instrument, or to disclose its terms. The Investor acknowledges that it holds no right to compare its terms with those of an instrument issued later, and that a later instrument may be issued on terms more favourable than these.

16. Order of Precedence Among the Instrument, Its Particulars and Other Records

Where a term of this instrument and a statement in its particulars are inconsistent, the particulars govern as to the value or the basis of calculation they state and this instrument governs as to everything else. The particulars cannot create a right the instrument does not contemplate, and the instrument cannot supply a value the particulars leave blank.

Where either of them and a record kept by the Company are inconsistent, the instrument and its particulars govern. A register entry, a platform export, a board paper, an investor update and a management model are records of what the Company believed at the time they were made; none of them varies this instrument, and a reader who finds a difference should read the signed instrument.

The Investor shall not rely on a document of that kind as a statement of its rights, and the Company shall not rely on such a document as a statement of its obligations. Each party shall bring an apparent inconsistency to the attention of the other within a reasonable time of becoming aware of it.

17. Risks the Syndicate Acknowledged Before Subscribing

The nominee confirmed, for itself and for each member, that it understood that the Company was at an early stage, that it had not yet completed a priced financing, that its product had been installed at a small number of sites, and that its continued operation depended on raising further capital on terms that were not then known.

The nominee further confirmed that it understood that this instrument may never convert, that no member would have any right to require the Company to return the money subscribed, and that a member's proportion of the Company would be reduced by every later issue of shares, including the issue of shares on the conversion of instruments issued after this one.

The Company gave the syndicate the opportunity to put questions to its officers before the subscription and answered the questions it was asked. Neither the Company nor any of its officers gave the syndicate a forecast of revenue, a projected valuation or an estimate of the return a member might expect.
