LENDERB

Warrant terms

Shares: 310,000. Exercise price: $6.40.

Exercise and Adjustment Provisions

warrant lenderB states the covered security, exercise price, expiration, exercise notice, payment alternatives, certificate delivery, and treatment in a change of control.

Share splits, combinations, recapitalizations, and similar events adjust the covered shares and exercise price without creating an additional economic right.

The holder's transfer, notice, governing-law, and amendment rights are administered under the signed warrant and its attached exercise form.

Paragraph 1. Issue of This Warrant With the Equipment Lease Line

This Warrant was issued by Helioscope Robotics, Inc. to the lessor under the master lease facility by which the Company finances the robotic cells it installs at customer sites. The lessor required warrant coverage as part of the pricing of the lease line, and this Warrant was delivered when the master lease was signed and the first schedule under it was accepted.

The coverage was sized against the aggregate rental commitment under the schedules the parties then expected to draw. The Warrant is not reduced if fewer schedules are drawn and is not increased if more are drawn; the parties considered a coverage ratchet tied to utilisation and rejected it as too complicated for the size of the line.

This Warrant confers no rights under the master lease and is not affected by it. The Company's obligations to pay rent, to insure the equipment and to return it at the end of a schedule are owed to the lessor as lessor. A default under a schedule does not accelerate, cancel or modify this Warrant, and the discharge of every schedule does not terminate it.

Paragraph 2. The Warrant Shares and the Class to Which They Belong

The Warrant Shares are the shares of the Company's common stock stated on the face of this Warrant, subject to adjustment under Paragraphs 9 and 10. The Company shall at all times while this Warrant is outstanding keep that number of shares authorised and unissued and free of any pre-emptive right of another holder. (8 Del. C. § 151)

The Warrant Shares rank equally with the Company's other shares of common stock from the moment they are issued, and are issued fully paid. They carry no liquidation preference, no accruing dividend and no separate class vote, and the Holder obtains no right to be issued preferred stock under this Warrant in any circumstances.

This Warrant carries no protection against a dilutive issue of shares. If the Company issues shares, or rights to acquire shares, at a price below the Purchase Price, neither the number of Warrant Shares nor the Purchase Price changes. The Holder negotiated for a fixed price at the level of the Company's last priced round and did not ask for price protection in addition.

Paragraph 3. The Purchase Price and How It Was Fixed

The Purchase Price is the amount per Warrant Share stated on the face of this Warrant. It was fixed at the price per share at which the Company most recently sold preferred stock before this Warrant was issued, which the parties adopted as a reference point that both could verify from the Company's financing documents.

The parties chose an at-market price rather than a nominal one because the lessor priced the lease line on the basis of rental yield and treated the Warrant as an opportunity rather than as part of its return. The Company preferred that structure because it produces no dilution unless the Company's shares appreciate beyond the reference price.

The Purchase Price is not adjusted for the passage of time, for the Company's performance, or for a later financing at a higher or a lower price. The only circumstances in which it changes are the mechanical adjustments in Paragraphs 9 and 10, each of which leaves the aggregate price payable on a full exercise unchanged.

Paragraph 4. Term of This Warrant and the Events That End It

This Warrant may be exercised at any time from the date of issue until it terminates. It terminates on the earliest of the fixed expiry date stated on its face, the closing of a transaction described in Paragraph 11, and the date on which it is exercised in full. There is no provision extending it by reference to the master lease.

The parties deliberately made a change of control a terminating event rather than an acceleration event, because the lessor did not want to hold an instrument over the securities of an acquirer it had not underwritten. The consequence is that the Holder must exercise before such a closing if it wishes to participate in the transaction, and Paragraph 8 obliges the Company to give it enough notice to do so.

There is no automatic exercise under this Warrant. If the Holder does not exercise before a terminating event, this Warrant lapses and the Holder receives nothing. The Holder accepted that outcome in exchange for the fixed at-market price and the absence of any obligation to pay for shares it does not want.

Annex I - Terminating events and what the Holder must do before each

Paragraph 5. Exercise in Whole or in Part and Payment in Cash

The Holder may exercise this Warrant in whole or in part, and on more than one occasion, by delivering to the Company the subscription form attached to it, together with this Warrant, and by paying the aggregate Purchase Price for the Warrant Shares as to which it exercises in immediately available funds to the account the Company notifies.

Payment must be in cash. The Holder may not tender a promissory note, may not set off an amount the Company owes it under the master lease or otherwise, and may not direct the Company to apply a rental credit against the Purchase Price. The Company shall not issue Warrant Shares before the funds have been received in its account.

On a partial exercise the Company shall issue a replacement Warrant for the balance of the Warrant Shares, on the same terms and bearing the same expiry date. The replacement Warrant is a continuation of this one and not a new grant, and the Holder's rights under it are not restarted or extended by its issue.

Exercise terms

Exercise price: $6.40.

Paragraph 6. When a Cashless Exercise Is and Is Not Available

A cashless exercise is not available while the Company's common stock is not publicly traded. The Holder may not require the Company to withhold Warrant Shares in satisfaction of the Purchase Price, and the Company may not offer to do so, because the parties did not wish to depend on a valuation of privately held shares at the moment of exercise.

If the Company's common stock becomes publicly traded, the Holder may thereafter elect a cashless exercise, and the number of Warrant Shares the Company issues is determined by the formula stated in the exercise particulars of this Warrant, using the market price the particulars identify. The election is made in the subscription form and is irrevocable once delivered.

The availability of a cashless exercise after a listing does not create one before a listing, and the absence of one before a listing does not entitle the Holder to any compensating adjustment. The Holder considered the position when the Warrant was negotiated and accepted it.

Paragraph 7. Board Determination of Value and the Appraisal Backstop

Where this Warrant requires the value of a share of common stock to be determined and the shares are not publicly traded, the value is the value the Company's board most recently determined for the purpose of granting equity awards, provided that determination was made within the preceding twelve months and no significant event has occurred since.

If no such determination is available, or if the Holder considers that a significant event has occurred since it was made, the Holder may require the value to be determined by an independent appraiser. The parties shall agree the appraiser within ten Business Days of the Holder's request, failing which each shall nominate one appraiser and the two nominees shall appoint a third whose determination governs.

The appraiser shall determine the value of a single share of common stock on a minority, non-marketable basis, shall be given access to the information it reasonably requests, and shall deliver a written determination with its reasons. The determination binds both parties for the purpose for which it was obtained, and the Company bears the appraiser's fees unless the determination is within a tenth of the board's own figure, in which case the Holder bears them.

Annex II - The appraisal procedure step by step

Step	Actor	Period	Document produced	Cost borne by

Paragraph 8. The Company's Duty to Give Notice Before an Event

The Company shall give the Holder written notice at least twenty Business Days before the fixed expiry date, before the closing of a transaction described in Paragraph 11, before a dissolution, and before the effective date of an initial public offering. Each notice shall state the event, its expected date, and the number of Warrant Shares then purchasable at the Purchase Price then applicable.

The purpose of the notice is to give the Holder time to decide whether to fund an exercise, there being no automatic exercise under this Warrant. If the Company fails to give a notice this Paragraph requires, the relevant date is postponed, as against the Holder alone, by the number of days by which the notice was late or omitted.

The Company shall also notify the Holder within ten Business Days of an adjustment under Paragraph 9 or Paragraph 10, and shall include the arithmetic. That notice is not a condition of the adjustment, which takes effect by the terms of this Warrant whether or not notice is given.

Paragraph 9. Adjustments on a Change in the Number of Outstanding Shares

If the number of the Company's outstanding shares of common stock changes by reason of a share split, a share combination, a share dividend or a similar event in which no consideration is received, the number of Warrant Shares and the Purchase Price are each adjusted so that the aggregate price payable on a full exercise, and the proportion of the Company the Warrant Shares represent, are unchanged.

An adjustment takes effect at the moment the event takes effect. Where a series of such events occurs, the adjustments are applied in the order the events occurred and not aggregated. The Company shall record each adjustment against the register entry for this Warrant so that the current figures can be read from the register without recomputing the history.

No adjustment is made for a cash dividend, for a repurchase of shares by the Company, for the conversion of the Company's preferred stock into common stock, or for the issue of shares or of rights to acquire shares at any price. The Holder has no protection against those events and did not bargain for any.

Paragraph 10. Adjustments on a Capital Reorganisation

A Capital Reorganisation is a reclassification of the common stock, an exchange of the common stock for other securities of the Company, or a merger or consolidation in which the Company survives and its common stock is converted into other securities or property. On a Capital Reorganisation this Warrant becomes exercisable for what the Holder would have received had it exercised in full immediately before it.

The aggregate Purchase Price is unchanged on a Capital Reorganisation, and the Purchase Price per unit of the securities or property for which the Warrant becomes exercisable is derived accordingly. The Company shall deliver to the Holder, before the Capital Reorganisation takes effect, a written statement of what the Warrant will be exercisable for and how the price per unit was derived.

The Company shall not effect a Capital Reorganisation unless the entity whose securities become purchasable assumes this Warrant in writing on terms no less favourable to the Holder. A transaction in which the Company does not survive is not a Capital Reorganisation; it is a terminating event under Paragraph 4 and is dealt with by Paragraph 11. (8 Del. C. § 202)

Share coverage

Shares subject to warrant: 310,000.

Paragraph 11. Change of Control

If the Company proposes to enter into a merger or consolidation in which it does not survive, a sale of substantially all of its assets, or a transaction in which a person acquires shares carrying a majority of its voting power, the Company shall give the Holder the notice Paragraph 8 requires and shall include the consideration expected to be received for each share of common stock.

The Holder may exercise this Warrant, in whole or in part and for cash, at any time before the closing of such a transaction, and may make its exercise conditional on the closing occurring. If it does so, the Company shall treat the exercise as effective immediately before the closing and shall return the funds if the closing does not occur.

If the Holder does not exercise, this Warrant terminates at the closing and the Holder receives nothing in respect of it. The Company shall not agree with a counterparty that the Warrant survives the closing unless the Holder consents in writing, and shall not represent to a counterparty that the Warrant will be assumed.

Paragraph 12. Reservation of Shares and Validity of the Warrant Shares

The Company represents that it has taken the corporate action necessary to authorise the issue of this Warrant and of the Warrant Shares, that the Warrant Shares when issued against payment of the Purchase Price will be validly issued, fully paid and non-assessable, and that their issue will not violate any pre-emptive right or any agreement to which the Company is a party.

The Company shall not issue, or agree to issue, a security that would prevent it from issuing the Warrant Shares, and shall not permit its authorised but unissued shares to fall below the number needed to satisfy this Warrant together with its other outstanding rights to acquire shares.

Paragraph 13. Transfers Limited to Affiliates of the Holder

The Holder may transfer this Warrant only to an entity that controls it, that it controls, or that is under common control with it, and only on notice to the Company accompanied by the transferee's representations under Paragraph 15. The Holder may not transfer this Warrant to a lease participant, to a fund it manages, or to any other person without the Company's prior written consent.

The restriction is narrower than the restriction on the assignment of the lease line, which the master lease permits to participants. The parties adopted the narrower restriction here because the Company was not prepared to have an instrument over its shares circulate among lease participants it had not approved.

The Company shall maintain a register of this Warrant and of every transfer of it, and shall treat the registered holder as the person entitled to exercise. A purported transfer in breach of this Paragraph is void and shall not be recorded.

Paragraph 14. Loss, Theft, Destruction or Mutilation of This Warrant

On receipt of evidence reasonably satisfactory to it that this Warrant has been lost, stolen, destroyed or mutilated, the Company shall issue a replacement Warrant of like tenor and date, and shall cancel the original in its register. The Company may require an indemnity from the Holder against a claim by a person presenting the original.

The Company shall not require a surety bond where the Holder is an institution whose own indemnity the Company has accepted, and shall not treat the loss of the instrument as affecting the Holder's rights. A replacement Warrant is a continuation of the original and carries the same expiry date and the same adjustment history.

Paragraph 15. Representations, Absence of Registration Rights and Resale

The Holder represents on issue and on each exercise that it is an accredited investor (17 C.F.R. § 230.501), that it takes this Warrant and the Warrant Shares for its own account for investment, and that it understands that neither has been registered and that both are restricted securities whose resale is limited.

This Warrant carries no registration rights of any kind. The Holder is not entitled to demand a registration, to include the Warrant Shares in a registration the Company files for itself or for another holder, or to receive notice of such a registration. The Holder asked for piggyback rights when the Warrant was negotiated and the Company declined to grant them.

The Company shall apply its restrictive legend to any certificate or notation for Warrant Shares, and may decline to record a transfer of the Warrant Shares made otherwise than in accordance with that legend and with the agreements to which the Holder has adhered.

Adjustment and notices

Adjustments and notices are administered under the complete warrant instrument.

Paragraph 16. Notices, Amendment, Governing Law and the Attached Form

Notices under this Warrant are given in writing to the addresses in its notice particulars and take effect on delivery, or on written confirmation of receipt if given by electronic mail. A notice given under the master lease or under a schedule to it is not a notice under this Warrant.

No variation of this Warrant takes effect unless both parties sign a document stating that it varies this Warrant. Correspondence between the parties, a course of dealing between them, and the Company's practice in administering its other warrants do not vary it. The law of the State of Delaware applies to this Warrant and to any dispute arising out of it, and the choice-of-law rules of any other jurisdiction are excluded. If a provision proves unenforceable the remainder stands and that provision is read down only so far as is necessary to make it enforceable.

The Company shall keep this Warrant, the subscription form, the appraisal determinations obtained under Paragraph 7 and the register of transfers in one file, and shall keep a cross-reference to that file with the master lease documents.

Paragraph 17. The Holder's Position if the Company Becomes Publicly Traded

A listing of the Company's common stock does not extend this Warrant, does not accelerate it and does not terminate it. The Warrant continues until the fixed expiry date or an earlier terminating event, and the Holder may exercise during that period in the ordinary way, paying cash or, from the listing, electing the cashless method Paragraph 6 permits.

The Holder acknowledges that the underwriters of an offering may ask holders of instruments of this kind to agree not to dispose of shares for a period after the offering. This Warrant does not oblige the Holder to give such an undertaking, and the Company may not condition an exercise on the Holder giving one; if the Holder chooses to give one, it does so by a separate document.

The Company shall notify the Holder of the expected effective date of an offering, and of the anticipated first day of trading, so that the Holder can decide whether to exercise before or after them. The notice is given for the Holder's information and does not entitle the Holder to participate in the offering.

Paragraph 18. Costs, Taxes and Charges on an Exercise

The Company shall bear the cost of issuing the Warrant Shares, including the cost of preparing a certificate or making a book-entry notation and any transfer tax the Company is required to pay on an original issue. The Holder shall bear any tax imposed on it by reason of the exercise or of its holding of the Warrant Shares.

If the Warrant Shares are to be issued in a name other than the Holder's, the person in whose name they are to be issued shall pay any transfer tax or similar charge arising from that direction, and the Company may decline to issue until that charge has been paid or provided for.

Each party bears its own costs of negotiating and administering this Warrant. The Company shall not charge the Holder a fee for processing an exercise, for issuing a replacement Warrant on a partial exercise, or for recording a transfer permitted by Paragraph 13.

Paragraph 19. Waiver, Delay and Partial Enforcement

A failure by either party to insist on the performance of an obligation under this Warrant, or a delay in doing so, is not a waiver of that obligation or of any other. A waiver is effective only if it is given in writing, only in the instance for which it is given, and only for the purpose stated in it.

The Company's acceptance of an exercise notice that does not comply in every respect with the subscription form is not a waiver of the Company's right to require strict compliance on a later exercise, and the Company shall record any non-compliance it has overlooked so that the record is not read as establishing a practice.

The exercise of one remedy under this Warrant does not preclude the exercise of another, and the remedies in it are cumulative and not exclusive of any remedy available at law or in equity.
