KESTREL ACQUISITION HOLDINGS, INC.
MINUTES OF A MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS
Date: 31 March 2026
Time: 9:00 a.m. Eastern Time
Place: telephonic meeting, all directors participating by conference call
Present
Directors present: R. Halloran (Chair), M. Okafor, T. Bergstrom, S. Vance. Director D. Achebe was unable to attend due to a prior travel commitment and had submitted written comments in advance on the sole item of business, which the Chair read into the record before the vote. Also present, by invitation and without a vote: counsel to the Company.
The Chair confirmed that a quorum of the Board was present and called the meeting to order.
1. Background
The Chair reminded the Board that the Company was formed to pursue the acquisition internally referred to as "Project Kestrel" and that the Sponsor had identified Harborview Securities LLC as its proposed financial advisor for the Transaction. The Chair noted that Harborview's engagement letter had been circulated to the Board in advance of the meeting.
The Chair further reminded the Board that the target is a manufacturer whose outstanding capital structure includes senior unsecured notes and a municipal conduit financing on one of its plants, and that the Sponsor's preliminary screening had not identified a public disclosure suggesting the target carries indebtedness inconsistent, on its face, with a leveraged acquisition of this general size and sector. The Chair cautioned that this observation was offered as background only, and was not itself a substitute for the confirmatory diligence and leverage build the Transaction would require before any financing commitment could be considered.
Counsel summarized the principal terms of the engagement letter: exclusivity during the term of the engagement, a retainer credited against a success fee payable at closing, and customary indemnification running in Harborview's favor. Counsel noted that a Harborview affiliate might separately be asked to act as a lender in the acquisition financing, subject to that affiliate's own, separate credit approval process, and that the engagement letter's conflicts provisions were drafted to address that dual role.
Counsel also noted that the engagement letter's fee structure separated Harborview's advisory economics from any arrangement or underwriting fee payable to a Harborview lending affiliate under a separate financing engagement, and that the two fee streams would be invoiced and accounted for separately, so that the Board's approval of the advisory engagement at this meeting did not itself constitute approval of any financing arrangement.
2. Discussion
The Board discussed the proposed scope of Harborview's engagement, including advisory work on structuring the Transaction and assisting the Company in preparing materials for internal credit and investment approval. One director asked whether the dual advisory/financing role created a conflict requiring further mitigation; counsel responded that the information-barrier provisions in Section 4 of the engagement letter were the customary mitigant for an advisory relationship of this kind and that no further step was required at this stage.
Counsel also addressed the exclusivity provision in Section 1 of the engagement letter, confirming that it prevented the Company from engaging a competing financial advisor for the Transaction during the term of the engagement without Harborview's prior written consent, and that the exclusivity provision did not itself restrict the Company's own internal deal team or the Sponsor from continuing their own parallel evaluation of the Transaction.
A director asked what would happen if Harborview's own lending affiliate ultimately declined to finance the Transaction under its internal credit policy. Counsel responded that the engagement letter's own terms make clear that Harborview's advisory role carries no financing obligation, and that the Company would in that circumstance need to pursue alternative financing sources, a risk the Board should bear in mind in evaluating the Transaction's overall timeline.

The Board also discussed the formation of a Deal Committee to oversee the Transaction's day-to-day progress between Board meetings, reporting back to the full Board at each regularly scheduled meeting and on an ad hoc basis where a matter required prompt attention. The Board agreed that the Deal Committee should be kept small, to permit it to act promptly, while remaining accountable to the full Board on every material decision.

The Chair reminded the Board that formation of the Deal Committee did not delegate the Board's own ultimate authority over the Transaction; rather, the Deal Committee's role was to keep the Transaction moving between Board meetings and to bring any matter requiring the full Board's judgment back to the Board promptly, rather than deciding it alone.

3. Resolutions

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the following resolutions were adopted unanimously by the directors present, with the written comments of the absent director noted as concurring:

RESOLVED, that the Company is authorized to execute the engagement letter with Harborview Securities LLC substantially in the form circulated to the Board, appointing Harborview as the Company's exclusive financial advisor in connection with Project Kestrel;

FURTHER RESOLVED, that a Deal Committee of the Board is hereby constituted, comprising R. Halloran (Chair) and M. Okafor, with authority to oversee the Transaction's progress and to report to the full Board at each regularly scheduled meeting;

FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Deal Committee is directed to report to the Board at each regularly scheduled meeting on the status of confirmatory diligence, including the quality-of-earnings engagement and the Consolidated EBITDA build, and to escalate promptly to the full Board any finding that could affect whether the Transaction can be structured within Harborview's internal credit policy limits;

FURTHER RESOLVED, that the officers of the Company are authorized to take such further action, and to execute such further documents, as they deem necessary or advisable to give effect to the foregoing resolutions.

4. Other Business

The Chair noted that the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board would be held once the Deal Committee had a diligence update to present, expected to be within the following month, and that the Deal Committee would circulate materials in advance in the customary manner.

The Chair also noted that Harborview had indicated that a Harborview lending affiliate's own internal credit approval process, if a financing role were later pursued, would proceed on a timeline independent of the Board's own authorization of the advisory engagement at this meeting, and that the Deal Committee should factor that separate timeline into its own planning once diligence had progressed far enough to size a financing request.

Counsel added, for completeness, that the engagement letter's own term provisions permitted either party to terminate on notice, and that termination would not affect any fee already accrued or Harborview's entitlement to a success fee if a transaction with a counterparty introduced during the term later closed within the tail period the engagement letter specifies. The Board asked no further questions on this point and the Chair moved to close the item.

The Chair also confirmed, in response to a question from the floor, that the Company's own corporate records reflecting this meeting - the notice of meeting, the agenda circulated in advance, and these minutes once approved - would be maintained by counsel in the Company's minute book in the ordinary course, consistent with the Company's own record-keeping practice for board actions generally.

There being no other business, and upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously carried, the meeting was adjourned.
