KESTREL ACQUISITION HOLDINGS, INC.
MINUTES OF A MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Date: 6 April 2026

Time: 2:00 p.m. Eastern Time

Place: the Company's offices, with two directors participating by conference call

Present

All five directors were present, four in person and one by conference call. Also present, by invitation and without a vote: counsel to the Company and a representative of Harborview Securities LLC. The Chair confirmed a quorum and called the meeting to order.

1. Deal Committee Report

R. Halloran (Chair), for the Deal Committee, reported that confirmatory diligence on Project Kestrel was underway, including a quality-of-earnings engagement that had commenced on the date of this meeting, and that the diligence record to date had not identified a reason the Transaction could not, in principle, be structured within Harborview's internal credit policy limits, subject to completion of the quality-of-earnings work and the Consolidated EBITDA build.

The Deal Committee further reported that the target's outstanding senior unsecured notes and its municipal conduit financing had both been identified in preliminary review, and that the change-of-control provisions applicable to the notes would require analysis before any financing commitment could be finalized.

M. Okafor added that the quality-of-earnings provider had been engaged on the date of this meeting and had not yet delivered any findings, and that the Deal Committee did not expect a preliminary view before the Board's next scheduled meeting. The Deal Committee also reported that the purchase agreement remained in draft, that its price-adjustment mechanism was not yet settled, and that counsel had flagged an unrelated European precedent circulated as a drafting reference whose mechanism should not be read as reflecting the parties' actual intention here.

2. Discussion of Indicative Price Range

The Deal Committee presented an indicative range for the Transaction's consideration, developed with Harborview's assistance from preliminary comparable-company and comparable-transaction analysis. The Committee noted that the range remained subject to revision as confirmatory diligence progressed and should not be treated as a final view of value.

S. Vance expressed reservations about proceeding on the basis of a range that had not yet been tested against the completed quality-of-earnings report, and stated an intention to abstain from the vote on that basis rather than oppose it outright.

The Deal Committee also noted that the acquisition financing under discussion with Harborview's lending affiliate contemplated a revolving credit facility with a committed amount of 60,000,000.00 dollars, and that sizing of the term loan component remained under discussion pending the completed Consolidated EBITDA build.

The Harborview representative also updated the Board on the status of the data room the target had opened for confirmatory diligence, noting that the index of documents made available had been reviewed against the deal team's own diligence request list and that a small number of items remained outstanding, principally around the target's disclosure schedules, which the target's counsel had indicated would be delivered ahead of the Board's next scheduled meeting.

T. Bergstrom asked whether the indicative range presented reflected the target's own outstanding notes trading levels. The Harborview representative responded that the range was developed principally from comparable-transaction and comparable-company analysis rather than from the notes' own secondary market levels, and that a relative-value comparison against the notes would be presented separately once market data for the valuation date had been obtained, consistent with the instruction previously given to the deal team not to rely on a prior-quarter curve as a substitute.

M. Okafor asked whether the Deal Committee had a view on the timeline to a signed purchase agreement, given that the price mechanism remained unsettled. The Harborview representative responded that a signing within the next two to three months was realistic if the quality-of-earnings work and the price-mechanism negotiation both progressed on their current pace, but cautioned that either could slip and that the Board should not treat the estimate as a commitment.

3. Resolutions

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the following resolution was adopted, with S. Vance abstaining and the remaining directors voting in favor:

RESOLVED, that the Deal Committee and management are authorized to continue negotiating the Transaction within the indicative price range presented at this meeting, subject to confirmatory diligence, and to report any material change in that range to the full Board before it is communicated to the counterparty.

4. Executive Session

The Board then moved into executive session, with counsel and the Harborview representative excused, to discuss a matter unrelated to Project Kestrel concerning the Company's own management succession planning. No vote was taken on that matter and it is not further recorded in these minutes.

Following the executive session, the Board reconvened in open session with counsel and the Harborview representative present, and the Chair confirmed that no action requiring disclosure in these minutes had been taken during the executive session.

The Board also noted, for the record, that the target's disclosure schedules had still not been delivered in final form as of the date of this meeting, and directed the Deal Committee to escalate to target counsel if delivery did not occur before confirmatory diligence was scheduled to conclude, so that the Board's next review was not delayed on that account.

D. Achebe, participating for the first time since the March meeting, asked for a brief recap of the resolutions adopted in March. The Chair summarized the authorization of the engagement letter and the formation of the Deal Committee, and confirmed that both remained in effect unchanged.

D. Achebe also asked whether the Board should expect a further update on the target's rating agency actions before the next meeting, having reviewed the March materials in advance. The Deal Committee responded that no rating action had occurred since March on either the corporate notes or the municipal conduit bonds, and that any action occurring before the next meeting would be reported promptly rather than held for the regular cycle.

R. Halloran (Chair) closed the diligence discussion by asking counsel to confirm that the Company's own corporate approvals for the Transaction, as distinct from Harborview's internal credit approval process, remained on track. Counsel confirmed that no additional corporate approval beyond the Board's own resolutions was presently anticipated, subject to the final form of the Transaction once negotiated.

The Harborview representative also gave a brief update on market conditions relevant to the financing plan, noting that the deal team intended to obtain the published government yield curve as of the eventual valuation date rather than rely on the curve as observed at the date of this meeting, consistent with the modelling conventions the deal team had adopted for the Transaction generally.

The Chair confirmed that these minutes, once approved, would be maintained in the Company's minute book together with the March minutes, and that the Deal Committee's own working papers supporting the diligence update presented at this meeting would be retained separately in the Transaction's diligence file.

5. Other Business

The Chair reminded the Deal Committee to circulate an updated diligence timeline before the Board's next regularly scheduled meeting, and noted that the Investment Committee of the Sponsor would separately be reviewing the financing plan on its own schedule, distinct from the Board's own oversight of the acquisition vehicle.

There being no other business, the meeting was adjourned.
