MINUTES OF A MEETING OF THE INVESTMENT COMMITTEE
Date: 30 June 2026
Time: 11:00 a.m. Eastern Time
Place: telephonic meeting, all members participating by conference call
Present
Committee members present: P. Isherwood (Chair), C. Nakamura, J. Farrow. L. Beaumont was recused from this meeting on account of a personal relationship with a member of the target's management team disclosed at a prior meeting, and did not participate in the discussion or the vote. Also present, by invitation and without a vote: the deal team.
The Chair confirmed that a quorum remained notwithstanding the recusal and called the meeting to order.
1. Diligence Completion Report
The deal team reported that confirmatory diligence, including the quality-of-earnings engagement, the Consolidated EBITDA build, and the change-of-control analysis on the target's senior unsecured notes, was substantially complete as of the date of this meeting.
The Chair noted, for the benefit of the members present, that this meeting fell on the valuation date the deal team had been using throughout the diligence process, and asked the deal team to confirm that every market-data input relied upon in the final terms was sourced as of that date rather than an earlier date carried forward from a previous round of analysis. The deal team confirmed that the published government yield curve and the notes' own market data had each been refreshed as of the valuation date.
The deal team further reported that the addback schedule underlying the Consolidated EBITDA build had been reconciled to the credit agreement's own definition, including the cap on revenue-enhancement addbacks expressed as a percentage of Consolidated EBITDA calculated after giving effect to the addback itself, consistent with the reconciliation the Committee had requested at its prior meeting.
The deal team also reported on the status of the target's disclosure schedules, confirming that the field-and-delivery mapping the deal team maintained against the data room index had been reconciled, and that any gap the mapping surfaced had been flagged to the Board separately rather than resolved by assumption.
P. Isherwood (Chair) asked whether the net debt build used for the leverage calculation followed the credit agreement's own definition rather than the purchase agreement's separate net debt definition. The deal team confirmed that the credit agreement's own definition governed the leverage calculation presented at this meeting, and that the two definitions had been kept distinct throughout the diligence process.
2. Final Terms
The deal team presented the final proposed terms for the Transaction and the financing plan supporting it, including the results of the rating-sensitivity assessment previously outstanding. The deal team confirmed that the final pro forma leverage calculation cleared Harborview's internal credit policy hard gate of 5.50x Consolidated EBITDA, with the margin stated in the credit memorandum to be presented to Harborview's own Credit Risk Committee.
The deal team also reported that the change-of-control analysis had concluded that the notes' repurchase provision requires both a change of control and a ratings condition, and that committed funding for the financing plan had been sized on the assumption that the repurchase obligation is triggered and that all holders tender, consistent with Harborview's own internal credit policy convention.
3. Conditions Precedent
The Committee discussed the conditions precedent to be included in the commitment papers: delivery of the final quality-of-earnings report, confirmation that no material adverse change had occurred since the date of the base case, and execution of definitive transaction documents consistent with the terms presented at this meeting.

C. Nakamura asked whether a condition should also address the possibility that the target's rating on its senior unsecured notes changes between signing and closing. The deal team responded that the rating-sensitivity assessment already presented addressed the leverage-driven component of that risk, and that the definitive documents would in any event require a bring-down of the representations made in the diligence record at closing, which the deal team considered adequate to address a rating change occurring in the interim.

4. Carried-Forward Item

The Chair noted, for the record, that the Deal Committee constituted by the Board of the acquisition vehicle in March remained in place and had continued to report to the Board between meetings, and that the Committee's approval at this meeting did not supersede or duplicate the Board's own separate authorization process.

5. Resolutions

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the following resolution was adopted by the members present, with one member recused as noted above:

RESOLVED, that the Committee approves the final terms of the Transaction and the financing plan as presented at this meeting, subject to satisfaction of the conditions precedent stated above, and authorizes the deal team to proceed to execution of commitment papers and definitive transaction documents consistent with those terms.

J. Farrow asked that the Committee's approval record be shared with the Board of the acquisition vehicle promptly, so that the Board's own authorization record and the Committee's approval record could be cross-referenced by date in the same manner Harborview's internal credit policy expects for its own authorization chain.

C. Nakamura asked whether the recusal noted at the head of these minutes should also be recorded in the Board's own minutes for consistency. The Chair responded that the recusal was a Committee-level matter under the fund's own governance documents and did not itself require a parallel entry in the Board's minutes, since the Board's authorization and the Committee's approval are separate acts by separate bodies.

J. Farrow asked the deal team to confirm that nothing material had changed in the target's business since the base case was last presented to the Committee, given that this meeting fell on the valuation date itself. The deal team confirmed that no material adverse development had come to its attention and that the base case remained current as of the valuation date.

P. Isherwood (Chair) closed the discussion by thanking the deal team for the thoroughness of the reconciliation work between the March and June meetings, and noted that the Committee's approval at this meeting reflected that the gaps identified in earlier meetings had each been closed with a documented basis rather than left open.

The Chair added that the Committee's own record of this meeting, together with the record of the May meeting, should be retained alongside the deal team's credit memorandum as the Committee's complete record of its review of the financing plan, distinct from the Board of the acquisition vehicle's own, separately maintained minute book.

C. Nakamura asked the deal team to confirm the expected timeline to signing and closing following this approval. The deal team responded that, subject to the conditions precedent discussed above and to the parties' own negotiation of the remaining open points in the definitive documents, it expected signing to follow within a matter of weeks, with closing thereafter on the timeline the definitive documents would specify.

The deal team also confirmed that it would circulate the final credit memorandum to Harborview's own Credit Risk Committee promptly following this meeting, and would advise the Committee of the outcome of that review once received, notwithstanding that the Committee's own approval at this meeting was not conditioned on the outcome of Harborview's separate internal process.

6. Other Business

The Chair thanked the deal team for the completeness of the diligence record presented at this meeting and noted that the Committee's approval, once recorded, would be communicated to the Board of the acquisition vehicle for its own information.

There being no other business, the meeting was adjourned.
