Category 15 ("Incurrence of a Financial Obligation"), Rule 15c2-12(b)(5)(i)(C), Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

Date of this notice: 2026-01-27.

This notice is filed within ten business days of the occurrence of the event described herein (2026-01-15), the date the guarantor incurred the financial obligation described below; this notice is filed on 2026-01-27, 7 business day(s) after that occurrence, as the Continuing Disclosure Undertaking requires.

Introduction and Notice of Incurrence of a Financial Obligation

This notice is filed pursuant to the Continuing Disclosure Undertaking described in the Official Statement, and it reports the incurrence of a financial obligation under the corresponding event category in Rule 15c2-12, which is identified by number elsewhere in this notice. The filing is made to provide timely disclosure to the municipal securities marketplace of an event that is material to the holders of the Bonds. Nothing in this notice restates the terms of the underlying financing documents except as needed to describe the event.

Under this event category, the reporting obligation extends to a financial obligation of the obligated person behind the Bonds, not only to an obligation of the Authority itself. The Company is the obligated person, while the Authority has no financial responsibility for the Bonds beyond passing through payments received under the Loan Agreement and the guarantee. Consequently, the Company's incurrence of a financial obligation is reportable in this notice even though the Authority has not incurred the obligation.

For a description of the guarantee and its role in the security for the Bonds, reference is made to the section of the Official Statement entitled Security and Sources of Payment. That section describes the guarantor's obligations and the manner in which the guarantee supports the Company's payment obligations under the Loan Agreement. The discussion in that section provides the context necessary for understanding the financial obligation reported in this notice.

The specific financial obligation that triggered this notice, and the date on which it was incurred, are stated elsewhere in this notice. No additional details concerning the amount, interest rate, or security for that obligation are repeated in this section. This notice is limited to the disclosure of the occurrence of the event as required by the Continuing Disclosure Undertaking.

Description of the Financial Obligation and its Material Terms

On 2026-01-15, the Company's corporate parent (the guarantor of the Bonds) entered into an amendment to its existing secured revolving credit facility, extending that facility's maturity and adding an incremental secured term loan tranche, and thereby agreeing to covenants, events of default, remedies and priority rights customary for a financial obligation of that kind. This amendment is entirely distinct from, and precedes, any financing that may be incurred in connection with the corporate guarantor's own previously-disclosed pending acquisition, which financing (if any) has not been incurred as of the date of this notice.

The financial obligation reported in this notice is an amended secured credit facility incurred by the Company and guaranteed by the corporate guarantor. The facility is a separate financial obligation of the Company, not a modification of the bonds themselves, and its incurrence is the event reported in this notice. The terms described below are the material terms of the facility as amended.

The facility contains covenants, events of default, remedies and priority rights customary for a secured credit facility of this kind. The credit agreement includes affirmative covenants obligating the Company and the corporate guarantor to maintain corporate existence, comply with law, preserve collateral, and provide financial reporting, as well as negative covenants restricting liens, indebtedness, investments, distributions, asset sales, mergers and related-party transactions. Events of default under the facility include payment default, failure to observe covenants, material inaccuracy of representations and warranties, cross-default to other material indebtedness, and insolvency-related events. Upon an event of default, the lenders may accelerate the outstanding obligations, exercise remedies against the collateral, and seek other customary enforcement rights, with the lenders' claims secured by a first-priority security interest in the collateral subject to permitted liens and to any intercreditor arrangements governing priority.

This amendment is entirely distinct from, and precedes, any financing that may in the future be incurred in connection with the corporate guarantor's own previously-disclosed proposed acquisition. The facility was amended as a standalone financing transaction and does not constitute acquisition financing, nor is it conditioned upon the consummation of that proposed acquisition. Any future financing related to the proposed acquisition, if incurred, would be a separate financial obligation and would be reported separately as required.

The facility remains an obligation of the corporate guarantor, not of the Authority. This allocation is consistent with the Authority's own conduit-issuer, no-financial-responsibility role described in the Official Statement, under which the Authority is not obligated on the Company's commercial borrowing. The Company is the borrower under the facility, and the corporate guarantor's guarantee is the facility-level credit support provided by the corporate parent. No fund, account, or revenue of the Authority is pledged for, or liable on, the facility.

The corporate guarantor continues to perform under this facility as of the date of this notice. To the knowledge of the Company, the corporate guarantor has satisfied all payment and compliance obligations currently due under the facility, and no notice of default or acceleration has been delivered by the lenders. The Company will continue to monitor the status of the facility and will report any material developments as required by the continuing disclosure undertaking.

Effect on Security Holders of the Bonds

As set forth in the Security and Sources of Payment section of the Official Statement, the guarantee securing the Bonds is UNSECURED and ranks pari passu with the guarantor's other unsecured, unsubordinated indebtedness. Holders of the Bonds therefore rely on the general creditworthiness of the guarantor, and the guarantee is not backed by a mortgage, security interest, or other collateral. The incurrence of a financial obligation by the guarantor does not alter the contractual priority of the guarantee itself.

A secured financial obligation of the guarantor could rank ahead of that unsecured guarantee in an insolvency or enforcement scenario because the holders of that secured obligation would have a prior claim against the specific assets pledged as collateral for that obligation. Upon a default or bankruptcy proceeding, secured creditors are generally entitled to satisfy their claims from the collateral before any unsecured creditor, including a bondholder relying on the unsecured guarantee, receives payment from those same assets. To the extent the collateral is insufficient, the secured creditor would also share in the guarantor's remaining unsecured estate, but the existence of the senior secured claim reduces the assets otherwise available to satisfy the unsecured guarantee. This potential for priority is why the incurrence of such a secured financial obligation is being reported in this material event notice.

This incurrence does not itself constitute an event of default under the Loan Agreement or the Indenture. The transaction is a financial obligation incurred by the guarantor, and the terms of the Loan Agreement and the Indenture do not treat the incurrence alone as a default or an acceleration event. The absence of an event of default is separate from any future consequences that might arise if the guarantor were to default on that obligation.

The Obligor will continue to disclose material developments concerning the guarantor's financial obligations in future Annual Reports or notices of material events. This ongoing disclosure is intended to keep security holders informed of changes in the credit context for the unsecured guarantee. The Obligor will assess each development as it arises and file a material event notice when Rule 15c2-12 requires such disclosure.
